pleasingly produced and contains 151 pages. There are seven main articles, all relating to various aspects of Scottish Folk Culture. The first two outline the scope and activities of the School, and of the remainder two are of particular interest to the agricultural historian. One by Betty M. W. Third is on Scottish estate plans, and the other, devoted to the plough in Scotland, is by Ragnar Jirlow and Ian Whitaker. Scottish Studies is edited by J. Wreford Watson at 27 George Square, Edinburgh, and published by Oliver and Boyd Ltd, Tweeddale Court, High Street, Edinburgh. The subscription is £1 a year.

EDINBURGH UNIVERSITY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY

In 1957 the Edinburgh University Agricultural Society celebrated its centenary, and to commemorate the occasion a special number was published of the Journal of the Edinburgh Agricultural Former Students' Association. The Chair of Agriculture at Edinburgh has had only seven occupants since it was established in 1790; one of these was our President, Sir James Scott Watson, who held it from 1922 to 1925. He has written an article on Scotland's contribution to agricultural progress. Among the many other articles is one by Denis Witney on the major economic trends in Scottish agriculture from 1857 to 1957; another is on agricultural research in Scotland since 1857, by Arthur Wannop; and there is also a history of the Edinburgh Agricultural Society by its President.

ULSTER FOLKLIFE AND TRADITIONS

In 1955 the Committee on Ulster Folklife and Traditions began publication of an annual volume called Ulster Folklife. Through the medium of this publication the results of the committee's work in recording the folklife and traditions of Ulster will be made available to the public. The volumes published so far have included a good deal of agricultural material. The annual subscription to Ulster Folklife is 5s. 6d. and the money should be sent to the Honorary Treasurer, Bryson House, 28 Bedford Street, Belfast. Manuscripts for publication should be sent to the Honorary Editor, R. H. Buchanan, Department of Geography, The Queen's University, Belfast.
