

Notes on Contributors

JOHANN CUSTODIS gained his PhD in Economic History from the London School of Economics in 2011. His Master and doctoral studies were funded by a scholarship from the Economic and Social Science Research Council (ESRC). He is currently researching on the economic history of India as a Research Fellow at the Department of Economics at the University of Warwick. He has published articles and book chapters both in the field of history and economics, with a particular recent interest in agricultural economics. His other research interests include labour economics and the economics of war. Address: Department of Economics, University of Warwick, Coventry, CV4 7AL; email: johann.custodis@gmail.com.

RAMON GARRABOU is Emeritus Professor in Economic History at the Autonomous University of Barcelona, JORDI PLANAS is Senior Lecturer in Economic History at University of Barcelona and ENRIC SAGUER is Senior Lecturer in Economic History at University of Girona. Together they have published 'Sharecropping and the Management of Large Rural Estates in Catalonia, 1850–1950', Journal of Peasant Studies (2001) and the book, Un capitalisme impossible? La gestió de la gran propietat agrària a la Catalunya contemporània (Vic, Eumo, 2001). Address: Jordi Planas, Department of Economic History and Institutions, Faculty of Economics and Business, Universitat de Barcelona, Av. Diagonal, 690, 08034 – Barcelona, Spain; email: j.planas@ub.edu

JONATHAN HEALEY is University Lecturer in English Local and Social History at the Oxford University Department for Continuing Education, and Fellow of Kellogg College. He completed his doctorate, on poverty and poor relief in early-modern Lancashire, at the University of Oxford in 2008; he works on several aspects of early modern social and economic history, focusing on rural society, including poverty, famine, social structure and popular politics. Address: Rewley House, 1 Wellington Square, Oxford, OX1 2JA; email: jonathan.healey@history.ox.ac.uk.

JOHAN POUKENS is a voluntary staff member of the Early Modern History Research Unit (University of Leuven). His main research interests and publications lie in the field of consumer behaviour and material culture during the early modern period. With Brecht Dewilde and Nele Provoost, he has published articles in Continuity and Change and in the Journal of Interdisciplinary History. He is currently finishing his PhD on the Industrious Revolution in the duchy of Brabant during the 18th century. Address: Early Modern History Research Unit, University of Leuven, Blijde Inkomststraat 21 box 3307, 3000 Leuven, Belgium; email: johan.poukens@arts.kuleuven.be.

ERIC RICHARDS is Emeritus Professor of History at Flinders University in Adelaide and is working on the origins of emigration. He will hold a Carnegie Centenary Professorship at the University of the Highlands and Islands in mid-2014. Address: Department of History, Flinders University, GPO Box 2100, Adelaide, 5001, Australia; email: Eric.Richards@flinders.edu.au.

ANNIE TINDLEY is senior lecturer in history at Glasgow Caledonian University, where she has worked since 2006. She studied Scottish history for her MA (Hons), MSc by Research and PhD at the University of Edinburgh, and researches on the modern Scottish Highlands, landed elites and, more recently, British and Irish elites in the British Empire. Address: Department of Social Sciences, Media and Journalism, Glasgow School for Business and Society, Glasgow Caledonian University, Glasgow, G4 0BA; email: Annemarie.tindley@gcu.ac.uk.

RICHARD TRANTER is Director of the Centre for Agricultural Strategy at the University of Reading. He has published widely on rural land use and farm economics and structural issues. His publications include, as co-editor, A Bond Scheme for Common Agricultural Policy Reform (2004) and, as co-author, The recession and farming: crisis or readjustment? (1994) and The changing financial structure of farming (1989). Address: School of Agriculture, Policy and Development, University of Reading, Earley Gate, PO Box 237, Reading, RG6 6AR, email: r.b.tranter@reading.ac.uk.

REBECCA WOODS is completing her PhD in the History, Anthropology, and Science, Technology and Society graduate program at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. She studies the environmental history of the British Empire, with a particular focus on the circulation of purebred British breeds of livestock. Address: Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Building E51-098, 77 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge, MA, 02139, USA; email: rjwoods@mit.edu.