

Notes on contributors

DRIES CLAEYS is a PhD student at the Interfaculty Centre for Agrarian History of KU Leuven (Belgium). His doctoral project (2014–2018) investigates the reconstruction of rural landscapes in West Flanders and central Belgium by means of three case-study villages: Merkem and Wijtschate in West Flanders and Liezele in the province of Antwerp. Address: Dries Claeys, Interfaculty Centre for Agrarian History (ICAG), KU Leuven, Atrechtcollege, Naamsestraat 63, 3000 Leuven (Belgium); email: dries.claeys@icag.kuleuven.be.

DR JORDAN CLARIDGE is an LSE Fellow in the Department of Economic History at the London School of Economics. He is currently finishing a monograph on the horse trade of medieval England while pursuing a second project which examines at the changing landscape of economic opportunities available to women in late medieval Europe. Email: J.Claridge@lse.ac.uk.

HUGO J. P. LA POUTRÉ is a physicist, teaching science and mathematics at the Centre for Education in Agriculture, Groningen, the Netherlands. Address: Terra, Hereweg 99, 9721 AA Groningen. Email: h.lapoutre@terra.nl.

FRANCES RICHARDSON is a tutor at the University of Oxford Department for Continuing Education, and a research assistant on the Family and Community Historical Research Society's Communities of Dissent project, which brings together a team of academic and volunteer researchers to investigate the historical, sociological and architectural aspects of the changing role of religious dissent in England and Wales from 1850 to 1939. Her DPhil at the University of Oxford concerned 'Rural change in north Wales: livelihoods, poverty and welfare, 1750–1860'. Publications include 'The women farmers of Snowdonia, 1750–1900' (Rural History, 2014) and 'The older houses of Penmachno' in R. Suggett and M. Dunn (eds), Discovering the historic houses of Snowdonia (Aberystwyth, 2014). Research interests focus on livelihoods, poverty, agrarian and religious history. Email: frichardso@Oxfam.org.uk

DR ELIZABETH RITCHIE lectures at the Centre for History at the University of the Highlands and Islands in Scotland. She has particular interests in rural, gender and migration history and teaches on a range of Scottish and North American topics. Recent publications have dealt with Catholic-Protestant relations in the Highlands, pregnancy and migration, and the importance of livestock to settlers in Upper Canada. Email: elizabeth.ritchie@uhi.ac.uk

MARTEN SEPPEL is Associate Professor of Early Modern History at the University of Tartu, Estonia. His main research interests include: famines in Northern Europe; East Elbian manorial economy; different aspects of early modern state building (cameralism, 'Gute Policey', medical police, hunger relief, agricultural policy etc.). Forthcoming work: Marten Seppel and Keith Tribe (eds), Cameralism in practice: State administration and economy in early modern Europe (The Boydell Press, 2017). Address: University of Tartu, Ülikooli 18, 50090 Tartu, Estonia; email: marten.seppel@ut.ee.